

B29 'Enola Gay'

B29 'Bocks Car'

B29 'Necessary Evil'

UPPER LEFT WING

LOWER RIGHT WING

Kits-World
www.kits-world.com
KW172220

WAR Birds

1:72 Scale

Boeing B29 Superfortress. This decal set contains markings for three B29 bombers used for the war-ending Atom-Bomb Missions over mainland Japan. Enola Gay was tasked with the Hiroshima mission and dropped the first A-Bomb, nick-named 'Little boy', a large but conventional Atomic weapon looking like an over-sized 1000 pounder. 'Bocks Car' was used on the second and last attack, dropping it's bomb 'Fat-Man' on to Nagasaki. The other livery included in this set is of the lesser known camera plane 'Necessary Evil' which flew over with scientific personnel and camera operators to film the effects of the explosions to gauge their effectiveness providing the world with it's first and hopefully last images of the incredible destruction wrought by these devastating weapons.

B29 'Enola Gay'
393rd BS 509th BG
North Field, Tinian, 6th August 1945

B29 'Bocks Car'
393rd BS 509th BG
North Field, Tinian, August 1945

B29 'Necessary Evil'
393rd BS 509th BG
North Field, Tinian, August 1945

Colour Notes: No De-Icer boots

Construction Notes: These aircraft generally had their defensive armament removed except the rear machine guns (cannon was deleted)

Construction Notes: side gun-aiming bubble replaced with small circular port

Colour Notes: Red fuselage band, No De-Icer boots